YOUNG PEOPLE AND VOCATIONS ARE IN OUR CONGREGATIONAL DREAM

By Mathew Vattamattam CMF

When the General Chapter dreams God's dream for the Congregation, what place do we find for young people in it? The congregational dream envisions of us approaching young people, walking with them, and encouraging them to respond to God's call (cf. QC 43).

The story of the encounter of Claret with some youth in Barcelona comes to my mind. A group of young people approached Claret and asked him with curiosity how he was able to do so many pastoral activities every day without being tired or worn out. Claret shared with them the secret: "Fall in love with Jesus Christ and with your neighbour, and you will understand everything and do more than I do". I would like to consider this moving encounter to guide what our relationship with young people is called to be.

Let me highlight three important lessons for our youth ministry from this event... READ MORE

VOCATIONAL LETTER

By Mario Kevin R. Armijo CMF

Several years ago, the most frequent question I was asked was no longer why I am not an ordained minister but rather why I decided to become a Claretian brother. I confess that at times I was uncomfortable being questioned about my vocation; it reminded me of other questions common in the culture in which I was raised...
